

The confidence factor.

All of us in our daily lives look to people with experience...people we can count on. Our doctor, auto repairman or banker.

In hockey, teammates place a lot of confidence in their goalie and defensemen. When the sticks are flying and steel blades are flashing they're counted on to prevent a score.

In our business we know pilots are counting on our experience in building dependable electronics. And most of us, in turn, place our confidence in the pilot.

Our decades of experience in developing and producing flight systems has placed us in a position of confidence with our many customers.

Confidence. It's a great feeling. On the ice and in the air.

We're Sperry Flight Systems, a division of Sperry Rand Corporation, making machines do more, so man can do more.

Fresher, because it's made in Arizona.

meat for your money.

We don't make junk. Never will.
Our wieners, for example, are made from the lean cuts of beef and pork.
Water. Spices. And nothing else. No cereal.
No fillers.

Our hams are carefully trimmed. And then trimmed again. And then trimmed again, so your family gets lean meat, not fat, not gristle.

Our bacon is cut from smaller, leaner cuts of pork. Just look at the packages next time you're at your store: You'll see more lean, less fat.

2. Consistent quality:

Our standards are tough.

Our products, after being checked by government inspectors, have to pass 81 separate quality checks of our own before they get to your store.

That means the product that was great last time you bought it, will be great next time you buy it.

NOTICE!

Hockey is a fast, rough contact sport and injuries are, unfortunately, part of the game. Not all injuries, however, are the result of the bruising action on the ice; numerous critical and permanently crippling injuries have been sustained by players tripping or skidding on unseen objects or debris thrown onto the ice by unthinking spectators. The WHA, its respective team managers and players request that all persons refrain from throwing objects of any sort or size onto the ice surface. ANYONE DOING SO WILL BE SUBJECT TO IMMEDIATE EVICTION FROM THE ARENA.

PEACOSH, BY GOSH, LEADS VENGEFUL MARINERS IN BID FOR FIRST SERIES VICTORY

THE SAN DIEGO MARINERS, one of the teams the Roadrunners will have to top if they are to reach playoff status for the second straight year, come to town this afternoon looking for their first victory in this year's expanded "unbalanced schedule". Last year, of course, when each club faced all others six times, three home and three away, the Runners and Mariners split, each team winning once on enemy ice. This season the Western teams meet each other nine times and five games between today's adversaries are scheduled here.

The teams have played twice before, the Runners winning the season opener here, 6-5, in a see-saw battle that had the Mariners leading at one point 4-2, and the following night, in San Diego, the Runners again came through with a victory, Del Hall accounting for the margin of victory with a pair of goals.

In the opener, Robbie Ftorek opened the scoring with the first Phoenix goal of the year, but before the opening period was over, the Mariners had taken a 2-1 lead. Phoenix knotted the count early in the second stanza but San Diego struck back for two more quick goals to take a 4-2 lead into the closing moments when Jim Boyd narrowed the deficit.

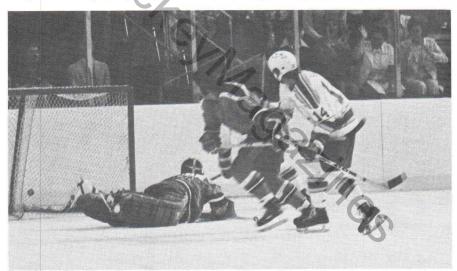

The third period was virtually all Phoenix; "Rocky" Rautakallio countered the tying goal on a powerplay blast from the left point, John Gray followed with his first goal of the season (including four preseason games) and the Runners boosted the margin to 6-4 on J.C. Migneault's close-in effort, one that slipped under a scrambling Ernie Wakely and became the game winning goal when Gene Peacosh scored on a powerplay scramble late, his second goal of the game. Peacosh, who potted 43 last year and added seven playoff markers in 10 games, is one of those under-rated players no one notices until looking in the "agate, and then they see his scoring contributions. Usually a slow starter, Peacosh turned the actuaries around this year with a sizzling burst from the gate, owning 16 goals at the start of this week.

Following today's game you can try to emulate Peacosh by trying your puckshooting skills down on the ice; if you hit the target you'll win a case of Coca-Cola in time for the busy Holiday social season, and even if you miss you'll earn a 32-ounce bottle of Coke. Let's see your sporting spirit; take a free shot and win some Coca-Cola.

HOCKEY THE CONTROLS OF

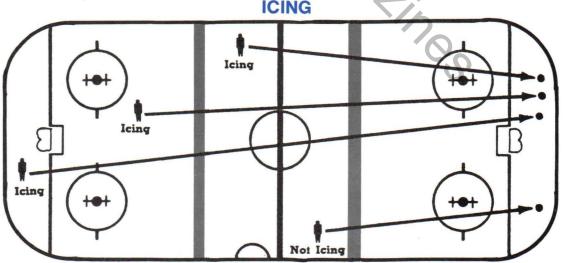

The puck must always precede the attacking players across the defender's blue line. This is the most common off-side call. A player's skates, not his stick, determine whether he is on-side or off-side. He's off-side when both his skates are over the line in question. Often a player straddles a line, waiting for a pass.

OFFSIDE ("2-LINE") PASS

The offensive team is restricted on its passes as it moves up the ice. A player in his own zone (where the goal he's defending is located) can pass across the first blue line and up to the red line. If he's in the neutral zone, he can pass over the red line but not over his opponent's (or second) blue line.

"Icing the puck" is a time-killing maneuver. When a defending team is under pressure, it may — if it captures the puck — shoot aimlessly the length of the rink. This produces a face-off near the guilty team's goal, which can be trouble. Icing occurs only when both teams have the same number of players in the game.

WHA RULE DIFFERENCES AND RULE CHANGES

OVERTIME IN CASE OF TIE... Unlike the NHL where many ties occur during the season, the WHA teams engage in a "sudden-death" 10-minute overtime period of play if the score is tied after 60 minutes of regulation action. The first team to score in overtime is the winner (collecting two points in the standings, the loser no points). If no goal is scored in the overtime period, a tie game results. (Last season the Roadrunners established new WHA record by playing 16 overtime games, winning two, losing six, tying eight.)

REDLINE PASS... If the puck precedes the attacking player over the center red line, he will be legally on-side and eligible to pick up the puck anywhere past the center line in the attacking end. This makes for long clearing passes and fast breakaways.

CURVATURE OF BLADE... The NHL permits only a 1/2-inch curve of the blade of the hockey stick; in the WHA the maximum curve is 1/4 inches.

NEW WHA RULES FOR 1975-76

There are three new rules in the WHA this year:

- 1. Rule 61-C has to do with icing the puck while shorthanded. Formerly the shorthanded team had to work the puck out of its defensive zone prior to shooting it the length of the ice, otherwise icing would be called. The new rule, coinciding with the NHL rule, allows a team playing below numerical strength of the opposing team to ice the puck with no stoppage of play.
- Rule 54-D has to do with the "third-man" rule. Formerly the third man in any altercation received a 10-minute misconduct automatically. The new rule gives the referee the option of issuing no penalty, a two-minute minor penalty, a five-minute major penalty or a 10-minute misconduct.
- 3. Rule 49-A has to do with Deliberate Injury of Players. The new rule adds that any player wearing tape or any other material on his hands who cuts or injures an opponent during an altercation shall receive a match penalty.

DEFENSEMAN AL McLEOD

By JOE DAGGETT

SOME TIME, say ten or a dozen years from now when his playing days are over, one of hockey's general managers might be well advised to talk to Al McLeod about a front office job. Now, McLeod might not be interested, but it would certainly be worth a try. With the education he's got (a B.A. in Business and Marketing from Michigan Tech) and is continuing to get (graduate courses at Arizona State), plus an appealing personality, a demonstrated capacity for dedicated hard work and a good knowledge of the game, he'd undoubtedly be an asset in anybody's hockey organization. And if he related to the front office work as he does to the team as a player, he'd be a heckuva company man.

In an age of rampant athletic egocentrism, McLeod is sadly out of step with today's trend in pronouns: to him, in matters relating to the Runners, it's always "we," not "I". Extremely cooperative with reporters, he yet poses a problem for them. You ask him questions about his play and the answer nearly always comes out as a statement about how his play relates to the team or how the team in general is doing.

McLeod and Phoenix Coach Sandy Hucul may have been made for each other. McLeod's not flashy or colorful or inclined to brawl. His satisfaction in the game comes from contributing to his team's success with workmanlike positional play and an exceptional ability to handle the puck and move it out of his defensive zone. And that's exactly what Hucul wants.

As McLeod puts it, "The key word for Sandy is discipline. He gets the maximum out of a group of players by insisting they stick to their positions and all follow his system. And it works. I've seen it happen time and time again that a disciplined team can defeat another club that may have superior personnel, but doesn't play together. We had a great season last year because this team's management did a good job of getting the players and then Sandy molded them all into the system."

The Hucul system, among other things, calls for defensemen to refrain from rushing the puck into the other team's end, a structure McLeod has no trouble complying with. It isn't that he's not capable of approaching the other team's net: he was a forward in college, in fact. But in general, McLeod feels, with Hucul, that a defenseman's job is to defend. This he did well last year, ending up a plus-12 in goals for and against and being voted the Roadrunners' Most Valuable Defenseman and Unsung Hero by his teammates at season's end. His three goals last season were one fewer than his professional career high recorded at Tidewater of the AHL in 1972-73.

McLeod actually came into his own as a professional the year before last. Called up by Detroit of the NHL at midseason, he played regularly and well for the Red Wings the rest of the year and was told that he figured in their future plans, a continuing and perpetual rebuilding program. But while he was not unhappy with the Red Wings, Detroit as a place to live and spend his career had little appeal. So an early-summer conversation with Roadrunner Coach Sandy Hucul and President Bill MacFarland led to his signing on the new Phoenix entry in the WHA.

McLeod and his wife, Ruth — whom he met while both were students at Michigan Tech — are now year-round Valley residents. Al passed last summer in a post-graduate marketing research project at ASU . . . and spent a lot of time in a local gymnasium in an exercise program that helped him add some muscle to an already-sturdy 5-foot 11-inch frame. "I'm going to be playing heavier than I did last year," says McLeod, "but I feel good at the new weight. I'm a lot stronger in the upper body than I was, and I think that'll help me."

Roadrunner officials agree, both as to this season and the future. They don't feel McLeod will be ready for a job in their — or anybody's — front office for a long time to come.

INSIDER'S HOCKEY — ROADRUNNER STYLE

HOCKEY FANS DON'T MERELY watch a game. As everyone connected with sports realizes, hockey fans are a breed apart; they EXPERIENCE the game, they LIVE it. Through each set of eyes something different is seen. A favorite player can do nothing wrong; an opposing player usually can do nothing right - unless he happens to be a Bobby Hull.

But it also is true that a fuller appreciation of what is going on down there on the ice can be intensified in proportion to one's knowledge of the collective skills required to play the game well.

This isn't to say that everyone must view and enjoy hockey with a unique sameness; rather, it is directing the new hockey fan to certain talents that may enhance his appreciation even

Take the FACE-OFF for example. Face-offs start the swirling action as many as 50 or more times each game, and as Phoenix center Jim Boyd says in the current Roadrunner film, "Face-offs are important because they give you possession of the puck." An over-simplification of course. He might have added, if you are quick enough, strong enough, guileful enough to control them. Boyd, it might be pointed out, is one of the best at controlling the "draw", doing with it what he has in mind, depending on where the drop takes place. If deep in his defensive zone, drawing the puck back to a teammate who can then claim firm possession of it; or, if the drop is further out towards the blueline, poking the disc over the line and out of danger; or in the offensive zone, drawing it back to a teammate for a quick shot from the point, or directing it to an open wing, or behind the net and quickly pursuing it to gain control.

"For me," says Jim, "one of the toughest centers to win a face-off from is Larry Lund of Houston. He's quick and strong and plenty smart. Another one that's tough is Minnesota's Fran Huck, basically because he's so quick.'

Center Robbie Ftorek cites two others as being among the best in the WHA. "I have trouble with Andre Lacroix of San Diego," says Robbie. "He's quick and surprisingly strong. Sometimes you'll also have trouble with players you don't see too often because you don't know their style or pattern. Oh, one other tough one for me is "Boydie" (teammate Jim Boyd), and I'm glad we only face each other in practice."

Many coaches assign statisticians to chart the success factor of face-offs for their players and sometimes will send a specific player out to take an important draw. Sometimes a player will forego "playing the puck", and will "play the opponent's body" instead, neutralizing him and allowing a teammate to pick up the disc.

Center Jim Boyd, who appears to be losing his stick, starts to turn his body into opposing player to box him away from puck after face-

One of the more frustrating occurrences in hockey is the shot which misses an unprotected or nearly-unprotected goal. The frustration is shared by player and fan alike. Shooting the puck into the net at such a time appears akin to hitting a golf ball into Grand Canyon while teed up on the rim. But such is not the case. The puck may be bouncing when the player's stick makes contact. If the shooter is being crowded his arms may be impeded so that he cannot follow through. If a player is to shoot in these circumstances he generally must shoot quickly, before the defending team can recover or before he is checked out of play. There isn't always time to get all of the blade on the puck, it may be shot off the heel of the stick or off the end of the blade, causing an erratic shot. Curved sticks cause the backhand shot to be inaccurate except in the hands of the most skilled players.

It's not as easy as it looks!

Last year Cam Connor used a drastically curved blade, and here's a potential goal that got away off a backhand attempt after pulling the goalie down and out.

Another source of frustration is the "one pass too many" which happens often in a game. Here the situation is that of two or more attacking players breaking on goal. The puck carrier appears to be in a good position to shoot, yet he elects to pass to a teammate. The pass is then intercepted or otherwise diverted by a defending player, or the pass is too wide of the intended receiver and a potential goal is lost.

These two Phoenix players were frustrated last year with "one pass too many", especially as close as they were, after seemingly having Whaler goalie at their mercv.

The rationale for such a pass may be any of several. The pass may provide the teammate with a better angle from which to shoot than that afforded the passer. A defensive player may be moving in on the puck carrier, or a defending player may be in a position to block the shot if the puck-carrier elects to shoot. Granted, the "last pass" is often a mistake since it requires a good pass as well as the receiving player accepting the pass properly, in addition to getting off the good shot. But when the play works and a goal is scored the precision of the play-making is an enjoyable spectacle. continued on page 22

WHA COACH OF THE YEAR SANDY HUCUL

FOR SANDY HUCUL, last season's WHA results were pretty much a case of picking up where he left off in the WHA the previous year. Almost!

Hucul's track record as player and coach have certainly been successful. Coach of the Roadrunners during their final two years in the WHL, Sandy led them to two consecutive regular season and post-season championships. He also coached the club during the final half of the 1969-70 season, producing a winning record.

Overall, counting minor and major league coaching seasons, Sandy has produced a solid 131-98-24 record, never failing to reach the playoffs.

Sandy arrived in Phoenix in 1967 when pro hockey came to the Valley of the Sun from Victoria, B.C. In 18 pro campaigns, he played 1147 regular season and 103 playoff games in seven different WHL cities. With a reputation for being one of the strongest and hardeshitting players in the game, Sandy earned all-star honors six times and was voted the WHL's Outstanding Defenseman twice, including his final season, 1971-72.

The quiet Hucul, a man of deep faith, has proven to be a leader who can inspire his players to greater levels of achievement.

Recognizing his contributions last winter, the Phoenix Press Box Association voted him "Coach of the Year" for the 1973-74 WHL titles (reportedly the first time a pro coach had received the honor), and in May he received two similar awards, by The Hockey News and in the WHA players poll.

Don't be surprised if he earns similar recognition next May.

WHA EXECUTIVE OF THE YEAR
WILLIAM H.
MacFARLAND —
President

THERE'S NO QUESTION about last season being among the most satisfying experienced by Roadrunner president Bill MacFarland.

Named to the position officially May 6, 1974, Bill set the wheels in motion forming staff, acquiring players and minting one of the most successful and exciting franchises in the WHA in only its first season.

As a result, MacFarland was voted WHA "Executive of the Year"

As a result, MacFarland was voted WHA "Executive of the Year" by The Sporting News last May, one year after he assumed the position.

The award came as no surprise, since Bill has been accustomed to success in his many-faceted career. Chosen to the All-American team while playing hockey at the University of Michigan, he was a four-time all-star in the WHL and earned MVP honors in 1962.

While still playing, he read law and passed the Washington state bar exam. After retiring as an active player, he took over the dual coaching-managing positions with the Totems and went on to cop a pair of post season titles.

In 1970 he left the Totems to practice law full time and in 1971 became the third and last president of the WHL.

As rewarding as last season's honors were, the soft-spoken Roadrunner president savored more the admiration and respect he received from those who worked for and with him.

MacFarland's goal this year? Improved success for the franchise both on the ice and off, and an even more rewarding season for Phoenix hockey fans.

Cam Connor says, "If you haven't slept on a Camelback Waterbed . . . you don't know what good sleepin' is all about."

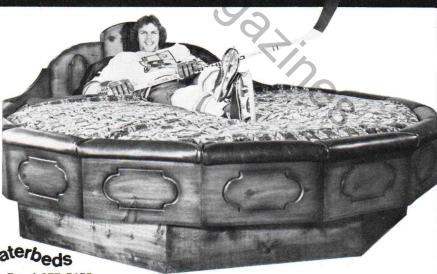

Cam Connor knows that people who sleep bedder, feel better, look better and perform better...naturally. And we guarantee it. Why not stop by for a demonstration soon. You'll never regret it.

Here's the conclusion of a picture-perfect two-on-one passing play; Michel Cormier (16) deflects puck past fallen Nordique defenseman and goalie after taking pass from Jim Boyd.

Fans are often puzzled by the causes for the numerous offside calls which interrupt the action. Aside from the offside caused by the anxiety of a player to get into the attacking zone, offsides result from any of a number of events. An offside may be forced when the puck carrier is momentarily impeded by a defensive player, causing him to delay a fraction of a second in crossing the blue line. Being the fast game that it is, this brief delay may not be sufficient for the other attacking players to pull up or cut laterally to avoid breaking into the attacking zone. Sometimes the puck carrier will change pace to avoid a check or to attempt to draw a defending player into a decisive action. Again, the fellow attackers may be too quick in crossing the blue line, with an offside resulting.

If the checking at the blue line is stiff, an attacking player may not be aware that he has carried himself over the blue line. Before he can recover and skate out of the zone the puck may cross over the line and the whistle blows once again.

Part of the fun of being a hockey fan consists of evaluating player performance. To the less sophisticated fan, a player who is a good body-checker often draws praise, while a more talented player who is not a body-checker often may draw wrath. The body-check is, to be sure, an important skill, both as a strategic move and as an intimidating device. But there is far more to the game. A fierce body-check may elicit a roar of approval from the crowd, but in some cases it may not have been the right move for a given situation. The body-check often takes both players out of the play and results in a loose puck which can be played by an opponent. A stick-check, either of the sweep, poke, or hook (not to be confused with hooking) variety often can accomplish more in breaking up a play than can any number of body plays.

Successful poke check is executed by Edmonton's allstar defenseman Barry Long as he breaks up Cormier's threat.

Too often fans blame the goalkeeper for the goal that is scored. Almost every goal may be said to be the end result of at least three mistakes, not including the possible mistake by the goaltender. The first mistake occurred in the opponents' end. By some means the opposition was able to clear the puck from their defensive end. A goalkeeper can nullify these team errors, but it makes his job all the more difficult.

For all its many facets, hockey is still basically a simple game, "put the puck in the net". Too fast and dynamic to permit elaborate and intricate "game plans", the game's spontaneity has much to do with its appeal. With virtually no "standing around" by participants, 60 minutes of action is crowded into every game. Its speed, daring, color, and excitement provide entertainment that is never static, and can be appreciated by the tyro fan as well as the seasoned observer.

So come along and enjoy it.

THE MEN BEHIND THE SCENES. . .

Trainers Curran and Fleger

VETERAN TRAINER JACK CURRAN, in his second season with the Roadrunners and with a solid reputation as one of the most knowledgeable "injury and rehab" trainers in the game, is currently serving as Secretary-Treasurer of the WHA Trainers Society, following his election to the post this past summer.

Curran, who hails from Agawam, Mass., began his career as a trainer 18 years ago with the Class D Pensacola Dons baseball team, and during the next 10 years was involved as trainer in both baseball and hockey at various levels of pro competition. The seven years prior to joining the Roadrunners were spent as trainer of the Seattle SuperSonics of the NBA, with summertime association with the Seattle Sounders Soccer team.

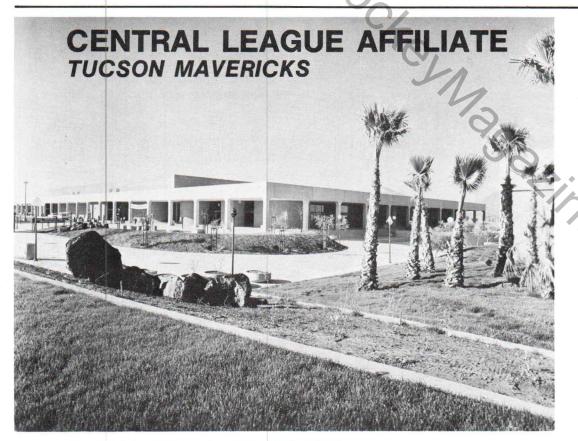

During the off-season he is an ardent skeet shooter, competing at various meets around the country with his wife, Kay.

Ken Fleger

ANOTHER VETERAN of hockey training rooms in both Canada and the U.S. is personable Ken Fleger, also in his second season with the Roadrunners. For 14 seasons, Fleger trained the Drumheller Miners, including their Allan Cup title season of 1966. In addition to his training duties with his hometown team, Kenny worked in the sales and promotion department of a local radio station.

Fleger was trainer with the Golden Eagles in Salt Lake for three seasons before coming to Phoenix, and then, as now, earned high marks from his players and opponents for his well-operated training room facilities.

Ken, his wife Adele ("Dale") and three sons, Greg, 19, Andy, 17, and Ward, 16, live in Tempe.

Around And About With The Cheerleaders

By FRANK GIANELLI Republic Hockey Writer

"HOW COME," said the hockey newcomer, "you guys don't have organized cheering during games? ... Like football? ... Li'l ol' pom-pon gals down there rilin' up some rootin'?"

After confiding that any hockey game that needed organized rootin' wasn't much of a hockey game at all, we got to reflecting about those old wild Western League games and visitations to Salt Lake City where they had the wildest, most enthusiastic band of backers we've ever seen.

They brought their own hockey sticks and waved them in enthusiasm — or brandished them in menace when the tide of fortune went against their pets on ice. They had a cheerleader. They exchanged volume salutes with the fans on the opposite side of the rink.

And, until management intervened, they also lugged in their own Mountain Dew.

"Man," said one awed Roadrunner after skating through an especially rugged game, "you could feel the shock waves of sound all through the game..."

Rooters? . . . Organized? . . .

Phoenix hasn't reached such in the way of stature.

But there is that band behind the southside pressbox section that is particularly enthusiastic — shouting a slogan we still haven't been able to decipher. Whatever — it often works an apparent charm. Maybe the squadmen hear it in inspiration.

And get their game going — and goaling. Whatever "Spork," or "Skork," or "Stork," means fellahs —

Keep them leather lungs a-pumpin'.

Mostly — the fans are rambunctious at home, and only slightly less than obnoxious when the team goes on the road.

But there've been a few memorable pests in Roadrunner history.

- There was "Firebell Flora" at Portland, in the Old WHL with her rinkside seat and brass bell with which to lead a rallying beat for her beloved Buckaroos . . . and also clang skulls of visiting players who had misfortune to be pinned against the wire and within her reach . . .
- There was the violent lady at San Diego (why does it always have to be a Miss, Mrs. or Ms...?) who would hammer on the screen trying to distract an opponent, shaking the pipe uprights 30 feet in each direction...
- San Diego also had the garbage spillers platooned above the entryway to spill drinks, or peg mustard-doused hot dog wrappers at players coming on ice . . .
- And Phoenix ...? Not without sin. Brian Moss recalls the "Li'l ol' Lady" who used to prod Roadrunner opponents with a rolled-up program. And everybody wondered why they winced so when she harpooned them through the screen ... until Moss took the weapon away from her one night —

And found the end studded with hatpins! . . .

"GUEST SHOT"

RAY ADDUONO

IN THE 1970-71 SEASON, Phil Esposito scored a record 152 points. The hockey world gasped.

In the 1971-72 season, Ray Adduono had 165 points. The following year, 170. It's doubtful if even his barber knew about it Adduono, it seems, was professional hockey's version of the invisible man. Compared to him, Lamont Cranston had a high profile. Before last season, that is.

Since he was old enough to pick up a stick, Ray set scoring records wherever he played. Somehow, that never seemed to be enough.

"Too small, too slow, can't skate. I've heard them all," sighs the 28-year-old center for the San Diego Mariners. "And maybe some other things I don't even know about."

What he never did hear was a resonable explanation of how he happened to be able to do all the things he does while laboring under such handicaps. Adduono performed in the Eastern League, the Central League, the American League and the North American Hockey League as well as in juniors. In each place, he scored. In several, he made all-star teams.

But in none, apparently, did he make an impression. The trail always led back to Syracuse, N.Y., and another year with the Syracuse Blazers, until last season when he stuck with San Diego.

"I would go to major league training camps (mostly with the Boston Bruins) and they would use me to play against the big boys until the big boys got in shape," he recalls. "Then I would be gone."

The National League expanded, then expanded again. The World Hockey Association was formed. Still, Adduono stayed at Syracuse. From 1969 through 1973, he was the highest scorer in all pro hockey. Ray logged 570 points, an average of 143 per season. During the same span, breaking every NHL scoring record, Esposito averaged 129.

But Phil Esposito is 6-3, weighs 220 pounds and covers ground in awesome strides. Adduono is 5-9, 160 and skates only fast enough to get where he's going at the right time.

fast enough to get where he's going at the right time.
"The guy never had a real chance until last year," says Mariner Coach Ron Ingram. "He would go to a training camp knowing there was no way he was going to make the team."

As we said, until last year. Prior to the Mariner's training camp in 1974, Ingram and then-coach Harry Howell had a long talk with Ray. A center spot on the roster was his if he produced.

Adduono reacted. In the team's first public appearance, an intrasquad scrimmage, he scored a hat trick. In a 3-0 victory over Vancouver, he scored one goal and set up another.

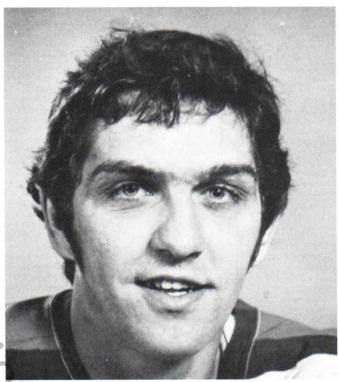

"When I came here, I was worried about how my skating would be. I didn't expect to score a goal because passing is my game," he says.

"But when Ron and Harry told me my situation, I relaxed and everything sort of fell in place. I wanted to play here bad. I figured this chance with San Diego was probably my last shot at the 'big apple' if I didn't make good."

Well, if 74 points mean anything, Ray did make good. He potted 15 goals last season, added 59 points and helped Norm Ferguson and Gene Peacosh to their finest major league seasons ever. All in all, his line accounted for 222 points. And in playoff action he was the Mariners' top scorer with five goals, nine assists in 10 games.

Phoenix knows him well. He scored San Diego's first goal vs. the Roadrunners last year and finished the season with three goals, four assists in six games.

Yes, indeed, not a bad effort for a fellow who for years carried the reputation for being "too slow, too small and can't skate."

37 stories above Phoenix, now offers a special dinner menu. A real treat for Sunset Lovers and Roadrunner fans. Free Parking.

Player of the Month

Winner of the Paul Johnson Jewelry "Player of the Month" award for November was center Robbie Ftorek, shown being congratulated by Al Bouley, who made the award of a $100 gift certificate. Ftorek responded to the presentation with a same night hat trick and pair of assists in helping lead the Roadrunners past Houston. He joins defenseman Jim Niekamp, October winner, as recipient of the Paul Johnson Jewelry award.

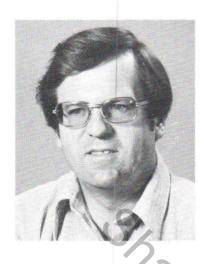

These exact replicas of the Roadrunner emblem, formerly made in 14K Gold only by Paul Johnson, are now available in Sterling Silver and are perfect gifts for all enthusiastic hockey fans. Available as charms, pendants, broaches, tie tacs, cuff links and key chains.

They Found What They Were Seeking

By DOUG McCONNELL Gazette Hockey Writer

ERNIE WAKELY FOUND Christ just around the corner, although it was a long search.

Joe Daley found Him just across the room. The introduction was made by Wakely.

Wakely, of course, is the much-traveled goaltender of the San Diego Mariners. Daley tends the nets for the Winnipeg Jets.

They are former Winnipeg teammates and roommates.

Ernie and his wife, Sharon, were not led to the Christian life. "We just found it by attending a particular church."

"When we left St. Louis (of the National League) for Winnipeg (of the World Hockey Association) we were searching for some meaning to our lives and we didn't know where to begin. We knew there had to be something more to life than what we had. What we had was money and so on but that doesn't always necessarily supply happiness and peace and joy."

They began checking out the churches in Winnipeg and where they wound up was the last one they tried, "just around the corner from our house."

Wakely converted Daley by example and not by preaching to him, but by responding to Daley's needs and queries.

It became increasingly obvious to Daley over a couple of years that Wakely had something he didn't. An inner peace.

"I think that was the approach that seemed to work best with him, not push it on him. If I had pushed it on him I could have turned him away. It was quite rewarding to see another individual turn to Christ."

Accepting Christ has changed Ernie's life.

"I don't become as frustrated . . . He can give you the peace and joy even in the difficult times . . . He can give you that kind of upper feeling when you're in a down situation."

There was a down situation early last season. "I went virtually from training camp until the time I was traded (mid-season) and I was in five games. I wasn't playing and there were times that I got kind of down and depressed. When our Bible study group got together, they asked me to give a personal testimony.

"I kind of related my own problems and we went through prayer that night and on the way to the rink the next day, this passage came to my mind."

(St. Luke 22:42) Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

"I think that was very important at that time because I was going through this situation and I didn't want to go through it but He was trying to tell me, 'Just let me handle the situation, just relax and let it go and I'll handle the problem.'

"I did and, of course, it was taken care of and it turned out quite well, but at the time, it always looks bleak."

Wakely was traded to the San Diego Mariners, who were in need of the 35-year-old's services.

"Getting Ernie turned the whole season around for us," says San Diego's general manager and coach, Ron Ingram. "He's a major league goaltender and our goaltending was a little suspect."

The Mariners, picked by many to finish last in the WHA West, came on with a 9-1-1 record over the last 11 games, even though seven of them were on the road, to take second place.

There was no immediate change in the Wakelys' lives.

"It wasn't the band playing or the cymbals clashing," said Ernie, "It may be that way for some people. It instantaneously seems to change their lives. "I think, though, for most people it's a day-by-day growing. Every day, something happens and you grow over the years. People see. You may not see the difference yourself so much because you're going through the day-by-day process but

ROOTIN', TOOTIN' ROADRUNNER BOOSTER CLUB

EVERY MEMBER of the huge Roadrunner Booster Club has one thing in common, and that is, "WE LOVE HOCKEY".

All our activities center around this fact. Events include a "Meet the Players Banquet", adult Christmas party, and a Christmas party for the kids, spring picnic, golf tourney, ladies luncheons, bus trips to away games, and the season-end Awards Banquet. All our activities are for team members and their families and Booster Club members only.

Individual memberships are just $5.00, entire family memberships are $10 and corporate memberships are $25. For further information about joining write to Betty Imboden, Secretary, Roadrunner Booster Club, P.O. Box 7205, Phoenix, AZ 85011.

GROUP DISCOUNTS

Get Together With Friends For An Exciting Evening With The Roadrunners

SEEKING A "special event" to add fun and excitement to your club's social calendar?

Does your civic club or church have a special project for which it is raising funds?

These are just a few of the reasons why "An Evening With the Roadrunners" is such a popular idea with sports fans throughout the Valley. Groups of 40 or more persons receive a $1.00 discount per ticket in the $5,50 seats, and may be arranged and booked in advance of any regular season Roadrunners game. Of course, the earlier you make your reservations, the better the available seating for your group.

For further information and/or to make arrangements for special Road-runners group tickets, call Wayne Hicks or Bob Barlow at 257-5100.

Don't trade your "Dream Home" to a housing tract salesman for a bunch of "blue sky".

Wes Maupin and John Cooper, the principals of Cooper-Maupin, custom home builders.

CMI COOPER-MAUPIN, INC.

2328 North 32nd Street Phoenix, AZ 85008

955-5820

Find out for yourself if we can build a better home, exclusively for you, at a lower price than tract housing. Call us.

We can design a home EXCLUSIVELY for you and your family with all the advantages of CUSTOM construction at tract housing costs.

At Cooper-Maupin, we build homes one at a time, under contract, for individuals who prefer to put their money into hard costs, custom design and quality construction rather than sales and marketing expenses, "blue sky" promises, intangible amenities and holding costs.

At Cooper-Maupin, you pay no salesman's commission. We also save you money because we handle our own design, plumbing and interior decorating. We have no model homes to build, decorate, furnish, landscape and maintain. No fancy sales offices.

At Cooper-Maupin, we do not build homes on speculation. We have no costly inventory taxes, maintenance and holding expenses to pass on.

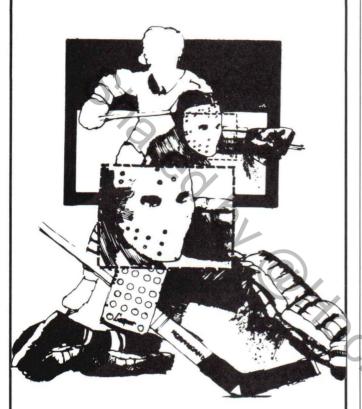

For these reasons, Cooper-Maupin can give you custom home design and quality construction at tract housing prices.

Seeing is believing! It will cost you nothing to prove to yourself whether we can save you money on your "Dream Home". We can advise you on homesites, floor plans, construction detail, mechanical features, costs and financing. Give us a call! We promise not to wear suede shoes or pressure you in any way.

"ICE CHIPS"

ON THE COVER: Steady defenseman Jim Niekamp, No. 2, joining Al McLeod as steadying influence of the young Roadrunners blueline corps. Born and raised in Detroit, Jim says he has always been a shot blocker, claims it is an instinctive move, not a learned one. He has mastered his art skillfully enough to be recognized as one of the top "blockers" in major league hockey. Not a prolific scorer, Niekamp has already passed his goal-scoring production of past two seasons. And he makes them count; both of his goals last year were game winners and he already has one GWG this season.

"COKE SHOOT" FOR EVERYONE FOLLOWS TODAY'S GAME

AS SOON AS the final buzzer sounds ending today's game, preparations will get underway to allow everyone present to get a chance to win a case of Coca-Cola, just in time for the busy Holiday party season. Shooting from the blue lines at targets set up at each goal line, it's a chance to test your skill at shot making.

Shown here are some of the thousands who participated in the recent Applegate's Turkey Shoot. It's fun and, since there will be several targets, won't take too much time. And it's also fun to watch the others shoot. Even if you don't win a case of Coke, just by participating you're guaranteed a 32-ounce bottle Coca-Cola.

So get in the festive Holiday mood. Stick around and participate in today's post-game "Coke Shoot."

your friends and relatives see all the change taking place."

Wakely is conscious of what others see.

"I did a number of things before I was a Christian that I don't do now," he says. "I used to go with the boys and have a few drinks after a game. Now, I go with them into the bar and I have my coke, instead.

"I feel that I should be with them, even though some people will frown upon a Christian going into that type of place. I think by handling the situation and being around them it's a great light for them to see.

"Its a team sport. If you start to go your way and they go theirs, they start to think you're snobbish or looking down on them. That is the wrong kind of impression to create."

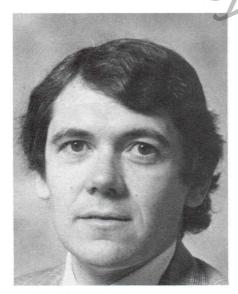

You see, he's still looking for conversions, but by example.

TOUGH VISITORS SCHEDULE QUICK RETURNS

FOLLOWING TONIGHT'S GAME the Roadrunners have three days of practice before facing the physically rough and tough Indianapolis Racers again, and then a short day off before meeting the Houston Aeros in another return engagement.

The Racers, of course, were here last Wednesday in a punishing duel. Newcomer Kim Clackson, out to make a name for himself quickly is doing just that in the penalty department and at his current pace would log over 600 minutes in the penalty box — the equivalent of 10 games if you want to break it down like that. Even half of that figure would smash the current WHA PIM record to smithereens.

With several others who throw their weight around, the Racers this year are a far cry from the patsies of the Eastern Division last season, the club that won just four road games and a total of 15 games all season. Coach Jacques Demers has molded a group of castoffs into a competitive, disciplined club that can battle anyone in the league on even terms. What is surprising is that he's done it in such a short period of time. Just 11 players on this current club are returnees from last season; just five, including goalie Andy Brown, were with Indy last season at this time. Brown, of course, is having an excellent campaign and ranks this week among the top goalies in the WHA. His backup, Leif Holmquist, former Swedish National star, has an even better record than Brown but is not listed solely because he hasn't logged enogh playing time.

After Thursday's action vs.

Indianapolis the Runners host the Houston Aeros again, the first time since the 6-5 overtime victory last weekend, the match that saw Del Hall explode the gamewinner past goalie Wayne Rutledge at 42-seconds of the extra session. One difference, however, next Saturday. When the Aeros take the ice, two familiar numbers will be present — 29 and 9. The former belongs to All-star goalie Ron Grahame; the latter to one Gordie Howe. Both were idled by short WHA suspensions last weekend. They'll be out to try to turn the tables.

We suggest getting your tickets early for both games.

In action last year, Cam Connor is sandwiched between Racers Ron Buchanan (9) and Ken Block during 5-3 Phoenix victory late in season. Below, Gary Kurt, who had tremendous success against Racers, posting perfect 4-0-0 record, including pair of shutouts, comes up with another stop in Indy threat, with assistance from Jim Niekamp.

Just great on ice

The score is Houston 2. The Whalers 1.

The New England Whalers won it in '73.

The Houston Aeros won it twice in a row. Last season and in '74.

The Avco World Trophy.

It's the symbol of supremacy in the World Hockey Association.

Avco's name is on the trophy. We're proud to be associated with the WHA. And, we want the association to be long and successful.

That's the goal we're shooting for

THE AVCO WORLD TROPHY

THIS IS WHAT the fuss and turmoil of the six-month season is all about, a magnificently conceived, designed and crafted artifact that in its current form stands 31/2-feet high and weighs 75 pounds.

The WHA's championship trophy was designed for AVCO by well-known Canadian artist, Donald W. Murphy, senior vice-president and creative director of Vickers & Benson Advertising Ltd.

The design construction of the Avco Cup encompassed many problems, the largest of which was the globe floating in lucite. The lucite acted as a lens which diffused the light and affected the apparent shape of the globe. The problem was finally corrected after four separate castings of the lucite.

The only metal compatible with lucite is silver-plated Britannia, and while the globe appears to be three and a half inches in diameter, it actually is five inches high, three

The final product was silversmithed by Henry Birk & Sons of Canada at a cost of approximately $8,000. Design fee for the trophy was about $5,000.
